SOCCER TOURNAMENT TOOLKIT

No ICE in the Cup is a national call to action demanding the World Cup remain joyful, safe and secure for all to enjoy. This means the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement has no place near the World Cup festivities.

We want ICE out of stadiums, out of watch parties, out of local businesses, and off the streets where people will gather to celebrate the game they love.

Soccer belongs to the world. Our communities - especially immigrant communities - and international visitors deserve to experience it without the threat of government violence or intimidation.

We know when communities come together, ICE melts.

Join us by organizing a soccer tournament in your community.

PLANNING GUIDE

1) Book a field in your community

2) Secure a permit for the field

- You may need to research which city/town agency controls the space, and be aware of the timeframe for applications to be turned around

3) Set up a sign-up form

- Take a look at the Brooklyn sign-up form as a sample, but feel free to make it your own

4) Tap into your community to recruit players and volunteers to help you run the event

Local soccer clubs may be a good resource for finding a field and recruiting youth players! See who is in your area and reach out.

MERCH/SHIRTS

Our logo is here if you'd like to design t-shirts or water bottles for players and volunteers, but please note this is not mandatory! You may also look at our merchandise if you'd like to order anything for your tournament.

If you wanted to use our logo and create t-shirts with your tournament's information on the back, we recommend exploring if there's a shirt printer in your community who might like to sponsor this element or offer a discount.

Alternatively, you can order pinnies/scrimmage vests in two different colors to designate teams, and assign volunteers a third color t-shirt that they provide themselves.

OP-ED

If you'd like to write an op-ed for local publications, please find some guidance below.

Most op-eds don't get published because they're too broad, too late, or too self-focused. The ones that land are timely, clear, and useful. Think of your op-ed as making a public case, not just sharing thoughts.

1. Get clear on your message

Have one central claim that can be summed up in a single sentence.

2. Hook it to the moment

Tie your story to something happening right now and explain why it matters today.

3. Lead strong

In the first 2-3 sentences: name the issue, state your position, and make readers care.

4. Structure it simply

Intro (hook + thesis), context (what's happening and why it matters), conclusion (specific call to action). Aim for ~600–900 words unless specified.

5. Write for humans

Use shorter sentences, avoid jargon (or explain it), and favor concrete examples over abstract language.

6. Pick the right outlet

National = broader framing; local = clear local stakes; niche = insider perspective. Read recent pieces to match tone.

7. Pitch smart

Usually pitch first. Include a 1–2 sentence summary, why it's timely, why you, and estimated word count. If sending a draft, note it's exclusive/unpublished.

8. Follow rules exactly

Meet word counts, include a short bio, disclose conflicts, and confirm exclusivity if required.

PERMITS/INSURANCE/WAIVERS

PERMITS:

When securing your field, you'll most likely need to obtain a permit from your local municipality. Be sure you understand the turn-around time and the specific type of permit required for your tournament.

INSURANCE:

Your soccer field may require you to obtain a Certificate of Insurance (COI). They will provide you with the requirements of the day-of policy, and you may use a local insurance agency or do a search online for event insurance. They will typically need this in advance of your event, so be sure you're aware of the deadline to submit the COI.

WAIVERS:

You will want to include basic waiver language for your players at their point of registration or check-in that you, any organizing entities, and the field are not responsible for any illnesses or injuries to players or their chaperones.

Connect with your local community and see if any photographers and/or videographers are interested in capturing your tournament.

If you plan on having professional photo/video and/or press, be sure to have all player chaperones sign a document acknowledging and approving. If you do not have permission to film a certain player(s), it is your responsibility to alert any film crew or press so they work around that player(s).

FILMING NOTICES:

When you engage photographers and/or videographers, it is important that you have filming notices visibly displayed so attendees are aware of a film crew presence before they enter the space. (At the entrance/check-in is a great place for these.)

KEEPING YOUR COMMUNITY SAFE

Partner with Trusted Community Organizations

Work with local immigrant rights orgs, legal aid groups, and community-based orgs.

Ask if they can:

- Be present on-site
- Provide guidance ahead of time
- Share “know your rights” materials

Have a Clear Point of Contact & Event Leads

People should know who’s in charge.

- Designate: an event lead, a safety lead, a volunteer coordinator
- Volunteers should be easy to identify (shirts, badges, etc.)
- Have a simple internal communication system (group chat on Signal, walkie-talkies if needed)

Have a Simple Response Plan

- Work with your trusted community partners to determine who makes decisions if something unexpected happens
- Decide in advance how you communicate with attendees, and when/if to pause or end the event

Center Community Presence

A well-attended, visible, positive event is inherently safer.

- Encourage:
 - Families
 - Local orgs
 - Faith-based groups
 - Coaches and known community figures

Photographers, videographers, and/or media presence may also deter escalation.

Avoid Alarmist Language

Communicate with players and attendees who may have concerns with language like: “We’re working with community partners to ensure a safe, welcoming environment for all families.”

FAQ

Q: The Brooklyn tournament is ages 11-13. Should my local tournament stick to that age range?

A) Not at all. Local organizers should feel free to set their own age range for their tournament!

Q: Can I invite elected officials to speak at my tournament?

A) We're a 501(c)3, so we ask if you invite any political figures to speak, that you offer equal opportunities for speaking across party lines, that the event itself and speakers stay focused on the message not how it shows up in political parties, and there can be no political fundraising at the tournament.

Q: I'm outside the U.S. Can I still organize a tournament?

A) Yes! Anyone in the world who feels aligned with the message of No ICE In The Cup is encouraged to participate.

Q: How do we keep participants engaged afterward? Can this connect to broader advocacy or future events?

A) Click here to find out how to stay engaged.
